Heavy Rain Potential
Through This Afternoon

Rainfall amounts of 1 to 2" with isolated totals of 3 inches mostly across the Rio Grande Plains and SW Counties. Up to 1" possible across the Hill Country and I-35 Corridor. Lesser amounts east.

Impacts:

- River Flooding possible across Rio Grande/ SW Counties.
- Urban and small stream flooding likely.
- Flooded low water crossings and some closed roadways are possible.

Timing:

- Multiple periods of rain expected through this afternoon.

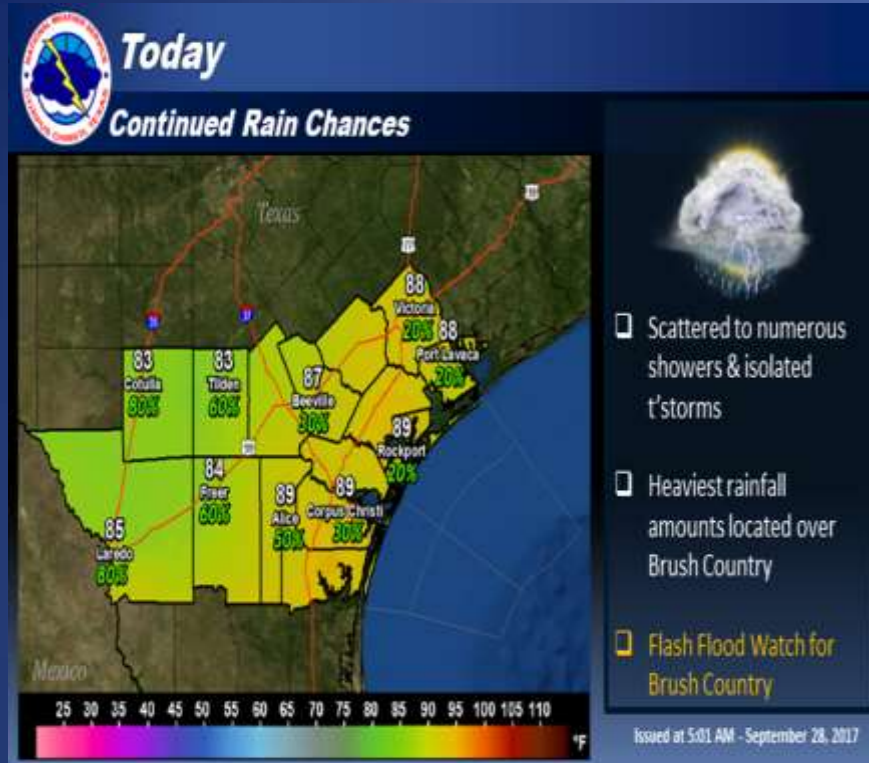

FLOODING? BE SAFE!
Turn Around Don't Drown

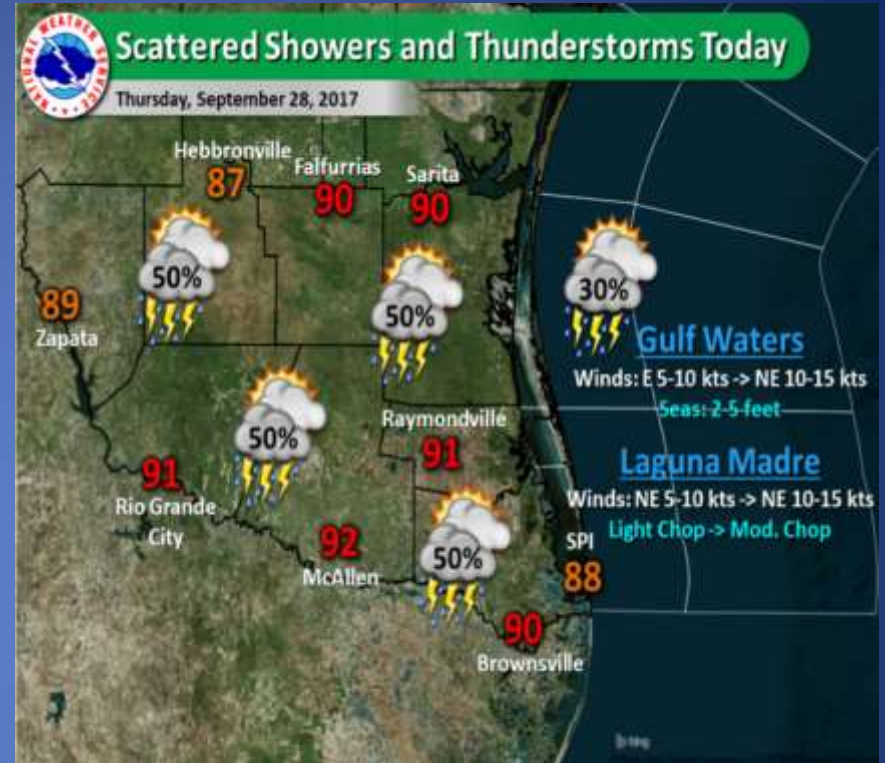

@NWSSanAntonio
weather.gov/ewx

Moderate to locally heavy rainfall will continue to impact the western areas of South Central Texas through this evening. An additional 1-2 inches will be possible along the Rio Grande Plains and in the southwest counties. Amounts up to 1 inches will be possible as far east as I-35 with lesser amounts in the east.

Hazardous Weather

Scattered to numerous showers and isolated thunderstorms are forecast to occur again today across mainly the western half of South Texas. The heaviest rainfall amounts are expected to be across the Brush Country, where a Flash Flood Watch remains in effect. Under mostly cloudy skies, afternoon highs will generally be in the 80s area wide.

Another day featuring mostly cloudy skies with scattered showers and thunderstorms will be expected across deep south Texas. Any of the heavier or slower-moving thunderstorms will have the ability to produce nuisance flooding in poorly-draining and low-lying areas. High temperatures will range from the upper 80s into the lower 90s across the region. Mariners should anticipate increasing winds from the northeast this afternoon with an increasing chop across the bay and gulf seas of 2 to 5 feet.
